ARTICLE NINETEEN

PHILOSOPHY

1. Role of the Coach

When an individual takes on the responsibility of coaching a team, they must be aware in their own mind what their role actually is. They will be a father/mother, a teacher, a friend, and a housekeeper to the students under their charge. But most important of all they must be a leader, the individual responsible for shaping some of the life-long personality traits of their own players. Below are some of the things they must have established in their own mind and be prepared to pass on to the students on their team.

2. Sportsmanship

An important factor in the philosophy of a coach is their attitude towards winning and losing. A Coach assumes responsibility in this respect beyond simply gathering a winning team. They must realize that their attitude and philosophy are reflected in their team members. Therefore, their objectives must be clear to himself/herself prior to taking on the duties of a Coach. If a Coach allows himself/herself emotional outbursts towards officials, their team members will follow suit and act in the same manner. If a coach does not accept part of the blame for defeat, then their players will also look for excuses to pass the blame and excuse themselves. Therefore, it is the duty of every coach, and especially those who coach young boys or girls, to instill a competitive, winning spirit in the students. At the same time, it is also the responsibility of the coach to show the students a sportsmanlike attitude towards losing and human error. When students are young, it is very easy to teach good as well as bad habits. If the coach maintains a good attitude towards all facets of the game, their players will follow their example.

Code of conduct Banners: Each school will have a Sports code of conduct banner that is visible in their school gym. It is to be an asset that could help when dealing with people who are losing perspective with the intentions of LSAA and other sporting events. LSAA will cover the cost for these banners and schools must contact the treasurer to place an order.

Sportsmanship Pins: Sportsmanship Pins are available to be handed out to athletes/coaches/parents that have gone above and beyond their role during LSAA events. This would be a special award presented by LSAA Executive, LSAA representative or event coordinator.

3. Noisemakers

Noisemakers are not allowed at any LSAA sanctioned events.

4. Code of Ethics and Responsibility.

Prior to becoming a coach, a individual must have a code of ethics by which they lives. This code of ethics should be such that it is one worthy to be passed on to a group of students. These ethics must be well developed and unchangeable so that at all times the team knows what is to be expected of them and what they expect of the coach. The coach's philosophy must be in line with their lifestyle so that they can lead by example at all times, on and off the playing surface.

The Coach's has the responsibility of their players before, during and after games and practices. Therefore, their actions will reflect their philosophy towards their duties and the game. The coach must realize that their responsibilities are more than just the changing of lines in games. It goes further to include the teaching and developing of youth. The coach must always remember that the development of such traits as dignity and humility are more important than the actual winning and losing of a game. Therefore, the code of ethics a coach puts forth should allow the students to develop not only as players, but also as respectable people.

5. Sexual orientation and gender Identity.

Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity Policy LSAA prohibits discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, which includes any individuals who identify as or are perceived as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, transsexual, two-spirit, queer or questioning. In order to comply with human rights obligations and uphold the principles of equity and inclusion, LSAA maintains the following policy to facilitate and encourage the participation of all students, staff, coaches, managers, trainers and any other persons associated with school sport to ensure all members of our diverse communities are welcomed, respected, accepted and supported in all aspects of their athletic endeavours. This policy covers participation at LSAA Ward and District competitions and other activities. The LSAA recognizes the implementation of this policy will require the collaboration of all parties involved. The Association believes that all students, regardless of sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression, should have the opportunity to participate in LSAA activities in a safe, respectful, inclusive and non- judgmental environment. Any student, staff, coach, manager, trainer or other persons who identify as or are perceived as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, transsexual, two-spirit, queer or questioning may participate fully and safely in sex-separated sport activities in accordance with their lived gender identity.

6. Leadership

The leadership a coach provides is very important to young players because this reflects their code of ethics as well as their attitude towards sportsmanship. A good coach leads by example; therefore, they should set the best example possible. Each coach should coach to win and have their students play for the same reason. This winning spirit will allow the team to meet competition more favourably. They should show leadership qualities which will allow them to gain the qualities of pride and humility. The students should be capable of accepting either achievement or downfall in a mature manner. Humility breeds stability, and stability breeds success. If a coach leads the team in ways that make them more mature in their actions and attitudes, then they will be better prepared for life. Each coach can attain this goal, but only if they set a good example as a leader.

7. Respect for Authority

Most coaches fail to recognize that for the game to be played perfectly, all players on their team must be well disciplined. Probably the best method of obtaining discipline is through the development of respect. This respect must begin with the players respecting authority which affects them. Therefore, the coach must teach respect for the officials, coaches, and others who have some authority which affects the team lives of the students. The best way for this respect to be taught is by example. That is, the coach should show respect for those who have authority over the team and as a result the players will soon realize those peoples' decisions and actions are to be respected.

8. Respect for Others

Next to respect for authority, the respect of peers is most important in developing a disciplined team. Once attained, this type of respect allows teams to gain a measure of dignity and humility even in losing, because of the respect that they have for the other teams' ability. It is often very hard for teams to respect an opponent because they have been shown that in order to compete one must think of the opposition as lesser people. This is not true, and it is a lesson which should be learned as early in life as possible.

9. Self Respect

Self-respect is perhaps the hardest type of respect for a player to learn. It is a different quality than confidence although both are related. In order to gain self-respect, a player must know their own abilities on and off the playing surface. Only then can their actions reflect the self-respect they have. Self-respect is a measure of stability. Actions which bring undue attention to a player generally show some type of complex, the player has. Once they have gained self-respect, a player will only draw attention which is due to them and therefore a sense of pride will develop.

10. Violations of the above will be addressed accordingly to the ATA code of conduct policy and the proper chain of command.

All reviews and modifications will be done prior to the start of that specific sport for the 2015-2016 school year.
